This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

MEMOIRS OF THE LIFE

OF THE

REV. RICHARD SOUTHGATE.

THERE is a diſpoſition in the human mind, which leads us to inquire, with ſome avidity, into the Lives and Characters of thoſe who have raiſed, in an eminent degree, either the eſteem or admiration of their Friends or Country.

Although the life of a truly good and pious man, whoſe days were uniformly ſpent in the regular diſcharge of profeſſional duty, may convey much leſs entertainment to the generality of readers, than the exploits of an Hero, the deſcriptions of a Traveller, or even the adventures of a Highwayman; yet there is ſomething in a good man ſo amiable and meritorious, that every circumſtance of his life is eagerly treaſured up in the breaſts of thoſe, who have poſſeſſed either the happineſs of his acquaintance or the honour of his confidence. If there ever were a man whoſe learning and knowledge, whoſe goodneſs of heart, ſweetneſs and evenneſs neſs of temper, piety and charity, merited more than common regard from his Friends, it was the perſon, the Memoirs of whoſe Life make the ſubject of the following pages.

RICHARD SOUTHGATE was born at Alwalton, in Huntingdonſhire, the 16th of March, 1729. He was the ſon of William Southgate, a conſiderable farmer of that place, and of Hannah, the daughter of Robert Wright, of Caſtor, in Northamptonſhire, a man much eſteemed, at that time, as a Surveyor and Engineer, and was principally concerned in conducting the navigable canal, that was carried from Alwalton to Thrapſton in Northamptonſhire. Richard was the eldeſt of ten children, three of whom died in early infancy, and all the reſt have ſurvived him.

He received the rudiments of his education at a private ſchool at Uppingham. Hence he was removed to Fotheringay, and placed under the care of the Rev. Mr. Morgan; where he began to diſplay ſome early inſtances of that retentive memory and turn for ſtudy which characterized his future life. At this place he did not remain long, but was ſent to the free Grammar School at Peterborough, then ſuperintended by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Marſhall, a good man and an excellent ſcholar, under whom he acquired a conſiderable knowledge of the Greek and Roman claſſics.

The agreeable mildneſs of his diſpoſition, and the extreme eagerneſs and facility with which he ſurmounted every difficulty in the progreſs of his ſtudies, ſtrongly recommended him to the notice of his maſter, with whoſe friendſhip and correſpondence he was afterwards honoured when he quitted ſchool; and this intimacy was not terminated till the death of Mr. Marſhall,* which happened October 3, 1748. This perſon perſon united to great learning a peculiar ſuavity of manners, which early gained him the affection of his young pupil, who never neglected his admonitions or diſputed his authority.

* He was educated at Chriſt Church, Cambridge, took his degree of A. B. 1716, A. M. 1721. Beſide the free Grammar School, he had the Vicarage of St. John the Baptiſt, at Peterborough, and was a minor Canon of the Cathedral.

Obedience to ſuperiors was a virtue which Mr. Southgate always endeavoured to inculcate in the minds of young people. He was of opinion that the diſcipline of a ſchool ſhould be as ſtrict as the diſcipline of an army; that ſcholars ſhould not be, in any caſe, the judges of their maſter's conduct; that they ſhould obey every command, which he might think proper to impoſe, without any inveſtigation of its propriety; it was the province of the maſter, he often ſaid, to command, and the duty of the ſcholar to obey.

Corporal puniſhment of boys in the upper claſſes, he always thought indelicate, and therefore improper: that impoſitions of Greek and Latin exerciſes, or repeating a certain number of lines from memory might univerſally be ſubſtituted.

The rapidity of his acquiſitions and the tenacity of his memory, had at this early period gained him the eſteem of many reſpectable perſons, amongſt whom was Dr. John Thomas, Biſhop of Lincoln, an intimate friend of his father. Under the patronage of this prelate, and with an exhibition from Peterborough, he removed to Cambridge, where he was entered at St. John's College, 1745, under Mr. Rutherforth,* to whom he

* Afterwards Dr. Rutherforth, he died Oct. 5, 1771; he took his degree of A. B. 1729. A. M. 1733, S. T. B. 1740, and S. T. P. 1745 He was Rector of Barrow in Suffolk, and of Brinkley in Cambridgeſhire, Archdeacon of Eſſex, and Regius profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity of Cambridge. He was Author of the following Tracts:

19. A Sermon before the Governors of Addenbrook Hoſpital, June 27, 1771, 4to.

Mr. Southgate frequently mentioned that the happieſt hours of his life were paſſed at College: he was here ſuffered to follow, without reſtraint, the bent of his inclinations, and as his mind burnt with ardour for the acquirement of knowledge, ſo his ſtudies were proſecuted with vigour. He lived in a retired manner, and intenſe application ſeldom permitted him to aſſociate, even with the very few friends whom he had ſelected.

His finances were ſmall, but having no pride, very little ambition, and great prudence, he was able, even at that time, to begin his collections of Books and Coins, and though what he bought of the latter were of little value, yet ſo nice was his taſte, that he never purchaſed any which were not in the higheſt preſervation and perfection.

His Poetical compoſitions, he often confeſſed, were rugged and inharmonious; but though he never attained any eminence as a Poet, yet he was a great admirer of poetry, and continued to read it, to the end of his life, with the higheſt pleaſure. What Trapp ſaid of Statius may with equal propriety be ſaid of Southgate:

Maronem admiratum potius fuiſſe quam imitatum.

Logick engaged his attention more than mathematick yet he derived aſſiſtance from both, united correctneſs with pertinency, and was moſt certainly an excellent judge of compoſition.

He took his degree of Bachelor of Arts in Eaſter Term, 1749.

From his attention to ſtudy and his extreme diffidence, the extent of his knowledge was for ſome time little known beyond the ſmall circle of his friends, but as his virtues and abilities became, gradually, more noticed, in the ſame proportion he became more generally admired and eſteemed.

Mr. Southgate found a College life ſo ſuitable to the turn of his mind, that he formed the pleaſing hope of being able to continue it; but ſuch is the condition of all human affairs, that what a man has moſt at heart, and ſeems, as it were, to have nearly in his poſſeſſion, is often, by ſome unforeſeen accident, deſtroyed, and all the fancied proſpects, on which his imagination had dwelt with pleaſure, are in an inſtant vaniſhed.

This was the caſe with Mr. Southgate; who, when he had been little more than four years at College, and had not obtained any fellowſhip to enable him to ſtay, was obliged, from ſome occurrences in his family of an unpleaſant nature, to quit the Univerſity; which he left with ſuch reluctance and regret, that nothing, but the calm religious philoſophy which ever after marked his character, could have ſupported him under ſo great a diſappointment.

He now retired to his father's houſe at Alwalton, where, by the aſſiſtance of books from the library of Dr. Neve, who was Rector of the Pariſh and a friend of his father, he was enabled to continue his ſtudies.

On the 24th of September, 1752, he was ordained Deacon, at Bugden, by his friend and patron Dr. Thomas, Biſhop of Lincoln, by whom he was afterwards ordained Prieſt, the 22d. of September, 1754. On the 8th of November in the ſame year he was preſented, by Biſhop Thomas, to the Rectory of Woolley, in the County of Huntingdon, worth about one hundred and twenty pounds per annum.

The circumſtances attending this preferment I think worthy of being mentioned.

This living became vacant during the minority of Mr. Peacock, who was the Patron, and was himſelf intended for the church. His guardians, not being able to agree as to the perſon they ſhould preſent, ſuffered it to lapſe to the Biſhop, who mentioned theſe circumſtances to Mr. Southgate when he preſented him to the living, but the Biſhop left him entirely clear of any promiſe or reſtraint reſpecting it. It was unneceſſary. As ſoon as Mr. Peacock had taken Prieſts orders, Mr. Southgate went to the Biſhop and reſigned the living. During the time he held it, he had to rebuild a conſiderable part of the premiſes, and to make ſuch repairs, that he may be ſaid rather to have acted like a faithful ſteward to Mr. Peacock than the real Rector of the pariſh; ſo that when he reſigned it, after having held it more than five years, he had not ſaved out of the income one ſhilling. The Biſhop on his reſignation ſaid, "You have done, Richard, "what I knew you would do; you have behaved like a "Chriſtian and a good man, and I have this additional mo"tive for thinking myſelf bound to provide for you."

Dr. Thomas, when he ſaid this, ſincerely meant what he ſaid, but though a good tempered man, and a worthy man, he had his failings. He was pleaſed with the company of perſons of rank, and had not firmneſs of mind ſufficient to refuſe what a great man aſked as a favor. One living fell, a lord aſked for it, and had it; another living in his preſentation became vacant, and the ſame thing happened through an earl or a duke; and thus one opportunity after another was ſuffered to paſs by, and the Biſhop died on July 19, 1766, without ever having fulfilled his promiſe to Mr. Southgate; notwithſtanding the Biſhop lived upwards of five years after Mr. Southgate reſigned the Rectory of Woolley; and nearly as long after he was tranſlated to the See of Saliſbury, and was made a Canon reſidentiary of St. Paul's.

Mr. Southgate received the news with the utmoſt compoſure, and never once ſhewed the leaſt ſign of diſappointment; he regretted rather the death of a friend, than the loſs of a patron. For the infringement of the promiſe he pleaded much in extenuation, and attributed it to a conſtitutional weakneſs which too eaſily yielded to the inceſſant requeſts of the importunate or the powerful ſolicitations of the great.

In

In the country he ſucceſſively ſerved the following curacies:
Upton and Leighton-Bromſweld, Huntingdonſhire.
Weſton and Wykeham, in Lincolnſhire.
Caverney and Mance, Cambridgeſhire.
Godmancheſter, Huntingdonſhire.
Louth, Rathby, Tathwell, and Cawkwell, Lincolnſhire.
And Doddington and Newnham, Kent.

During the time he ſerved the above cures, he was frequently in the habit of reading prayers and preaching at three different churches: and I ſee in his Journal that he not unfrequently ſerved four different churches in one day.

He now much regretted his having been obliged to leave College, as he found the want of books and perſons of literature to converſe with, were inſurmountable obſtacles to his improvement in knowledge: and he had to lament that ſmall country villages could not ſupply theſe: on which account he formed the reſolution of coming to London. Accordingly on the 2d of January, 1763, he quitted the curacy of Doddington and Newnham, and having received from Dr. Thomas, then Biſhop of Saliſbury, a recommendation to Dr. Nicolls of St. James's, Weſtminſter, he came to London. He was received by Dr. Nicolls in the moſt polite and even friendly manner, and was immediately engaged as one of the ſub-curates of St. James's; on which office he entered January 9, 1763.—Dr. Nicolls, dying the 18th of November following, was ſucceeded by Dr. Parker, the preſent Rector, to whom Biſhop Thomas alſo ſpoke in favour of Mr. Southgate.

He continued to ſerve this cure till 1766, during which time he received every mark of attention and eſteem from Dr. Parker, with whom he, ever after, was in habits of intimacy and friendſhip.

On the 25th of December, 1765, he entered upon the curacy of St. Giles's, to which he was appointed by the Rev.

Dr. Gally, on the recommendation of his friend Dr. Parker.

Mr. Southgate's turn for Greek Literature ſoon recommended him to the particular notice and eſteem of this very learned Dignitary,* with whom he continued in habits of the greateſt friendſhip till the 7th of July, 1769, when the Doctor died to the great grief of all his friends, and particularly of Mr. Southgate, to whom the Doctor left a legacy of fifty pounds.

Dr. Gally, ſometime before his death, finding his health conſiderably decline, from his great regard for Mr. Southgate, deſired him to get licenſed for his cure, that he might no, if he choſe to continue in it, be leſt to the will or caprice of any future Rector, and he was accordingly licenſed to this cure the 10th of March, 1769, at 50 guineas per annum.

This laſt cure he continued to ſerve till the time of his death, which nearly completed a period of 30 years.

In February 1771, he received a conſiderable ſhock by the death of his father, and on the 9th of February in the following year, he had the misfortune to loſe his mother. From his reſolution to ſubmit without murmnring to all the decrees of providence, he did not expreſs his concern upon theſe occaſions as perſons uſually do: but it caſt a thoughtful melancholy gloom over his countenance, and damped the cheerfulneſs of his uſual behaviour for ſome time.

From the time of his coming to London to the year 1783, though he had very little more than the profits of his curacy, yet ſo great was his economy that he had made a very conſiderable collection of books, and had got together no inconſiderable number of coins and medals. But to encreaſe his income and to aſſiſt him in this, he had ſeveral times, young gentlemen under his care, with whom he read the Greek and Roman Claſſicks.

* He received his education at Chriſt Church College, Cambridge, to his degree of A. B. 1717, A. M. 1721, S. T. P. 1728, was Rector of St. Giles's, Prebendary of Glouceſter and Norwich, and author of 2 Diſſertations on the Greek Accents and quantity, 8 vo. 1755—63.

His virtues and talents had by this time been able to penetrate through the obſcurity which his own diffidence and modeſty had thrown over them, he had become acquainted not only with men of the firſt character for ſcience and literature, but with many perſons of fortune and rank, amongſt whom were the Duke of Ancaſter, Lord Willoughby, Lord Camden, Lord Bathurſt, &c. to the two laſt he was ſtrongly recommended, yet as his natural diffidence prevented him from having the courage to ſolicit preferment, he had not hithreto the good fortune to receive it.

On the 24th of May, 1783, he was preſented by his Grace the Duke of Ancaſter, at the requeſt of the Dutcheſs, to whom he had been long known, to the ſmall Rectory of Little Steeping, in Lincolnſhire, and on the 6th of September, 1784, he was appointed aſſiſtant Librarian to the Britiſh Muſeum; which place had become vacant by the death of Dr. Gifford on the 19th of the preceeding June. This preferment he owed to the application of Dr. Parker, and ſeveral other friends, as he himſelf could not be prevailed upon to apply perſonally.

Mr. Southgate now began to find himſelf in tolerably eaſy circumſtances, and by the death of a relation in 1786, he became heir to an eſtate of one hundred pounds a year in Whitechapel. This addition to his income allowed him to indulge his inclination for buying books and coins in a manner more ſuitable to his taſte; for though he never bought any books but of the beſt edition, and in good condition, yet they were confined to the more uſeful and leaſt expenſive. Now, being long accuſtomed to habits of economy which he ever retained, he was able to purchaſe the more ornamental and expenſive.

Mr.

Mr. Southgate had toiled many years without any other reward than the conſciouſneſs of having filled the ſtation of life in which Providence had placed him, with the ſtricteſt integrity and punctuality, and of having done as much good as his ſituation in life would enable him.

But Providence, having tried him for many years, as a reward for his labour and integrity made the latter part of is life as comfortable as his age and infirmities would admit.

On the 11th of May, 1790, he was preſented by John Gally Knight of Langold, Eſq. ſon of his old friend Dr. Gally, to the valuable living of Warſop, in the Dioceſe of York, and county of Nottingham, which became vacant by the death of the Right Rev. Dr. Samuel Halifax*, Biſhop of St. Aſaph, Mr. Knight's Tutor at College.

* He was originally of Jeſus College, Cambridge, but in April 1760, he was choſe Fellow of Trinity Hall: he took his degree of A. B. 1754, A. M. 1757, L. L. D. 1764, and S. T. P. 1775. In March, 1760, he was appointed Profeſſor of Divinity in Greſham College. In November, 1765, he was preſented to the Rectory of Chaddington, in Buckinghamſhire. In February, 1768, he was elected Profeſſor of Arabic in the Univerſity of Cambridge, which he reſigned on being appointed Regius Profeſſor of Civil Law; he was made Chaplain to his Majeſty in February 1774, preſented to the valuable Rectory of Warſop, 17 ; on the Death of Dr. Topham he ſucceeded to the Maſterſhip of the Faculties in Doctors Commons; was advanced to the See of Gloucester, November, 1781; and on the Death of Biſhop Shipley he was tranſlated to the See of St. Aſaph, and died the 5th of March, 1790.

He was Author of the following works;

1. Saint Paul's Doctrine of Juſtification by Faith explained, in three Diſcourſes, preached before the Univerſity of Cambridge, 8vo. 1760.

2. Two Sermons preached before the Univerſity of Cambridge in 1768:—the one upon the 30th of October, being the Commemoration of Benefactors to the Univerſity; the other on the 30th of November following, 4to. 1769.

3. A Sermon before the Houſe of Commons, Jan. 30, 1769, 4to

4. A.

Though I neither know nor am known to Mr. Knight, I cannot avoid adding a few lines in acknowledgement for his diſintereſted liberality on this occaſion;—deaf to the ſolicitations of the great and the importunities of his friends, he beſtowed this valuable living on the man whoſe modeſty and diffidence he knew would not ſuffer him to aſk it, but whoſe virtues and merits he had long eſteemed. Every friend of Mr. Southgate, every lover of virtue and merit muſt have felt his heart glow with gratitude to this gentleman, who doth honour to the example of his father, by uniting ſtrict integrity and great benevolence to extenſive learning and knowledge. He has ſhewn that there ſtill are patrons who are ſwayed neither by the great and powerful, by Parliamentary intereſt,

6. An Analyſis of the Roman Civil Law compared with the Laws of England, being the heads of a courſe of Lectures publickly read in the Univerſity of Cambridge, 8vo. 1774.

7. Twelve Sermons on the Prophecies concerning the Chriſtian Church, and in particular concerning the Church of Papal Rome; preached in Lincoln Inn Chapel, at Biſhop Warburton's Lecture, 8vo. 1776.

intereſt, nor by mercenary conſiderations, but true to the truſt repoſed in them, beſtow their Patronage on the moſt deſerving.

Mr. Southgate was now in poſſeſſion of a large income, and was able to indulge his paſſion for collecting to a conſiderable extent; and greatly to enlarge the bounds of his charity, which was before, to the poor of his pariſh, conſidering the ſmallneſs of his income and the other uſes to which he applied it, much greater than could be ſuppoſed*; and ſince the encreaſe of his fortune he has given away among the poor nearly double what he received from the pariſh.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries in the year 1791, and was afterwards made a Member of the Linnæan Society.

Mr. Southgate had been troubled for many years with an intermittent pulſe, and from frequently catching cold by ſtanding in the open burial ground in very rainy or ſnowy weather, and ſometimes after dark, had become ſubject to a Cough and Aſthmatick complaint, which had greatly increaſed for the laſt three years: His diſeaſe about the heart made it neceſſary for him to avoid very quick or ſudden motions. This ſuited extremely well his general temper of mind: He was never known to be inflamed by paſſion, or too much elevated with joy, and his walking was ſo regular and uniform that it could hardly be called exerciſe. This certainly preſerved him from many inconveniences which quicker motions or ſtrong paſſions of the mind would have brought on, and indeed moſt likely would have terminated his exiſtence ſome years before. Yet perhaps too little exerciſe aſſiſted in bringing on conſiderable corpulency, which was very inconvenient to him and undoubtedly doubtedly helped to encreaſe his other diſeaſes. But as he had long accuſtomed his mind rather to contemplate the bleſſings he enjoyed, than thoſe which were denied, and was naturally of a chearful diſpoſition, he enjoyed himſelf tolerably well till the hard froſt at the end of the year 1794, when not being ſo careful as his infirmities required, he caught cold, which brought on his cough and aſthmatick diſorder. On the 12th of January he was obliged to confine himſelf to his room; the weather gradually getting more ſevere his complaints increaſed.

* He has been known, when in this ſituation, to take the laſt ſhirt but one from his draw and put it in his pocket to give away.

On Thurſday, the 22d of January, in the afternoon, he ſeemed ſomewhat better, talked chearfully, and inquired about books and ſubjects which he had been accuſtomed to be pleaſed with. Some expectations were now formed of his recovery, but the weather getting colder on the Friday and Saturday he became gradually worſe, and on the Sunday morning between eight and nine, when the Thermometer at Clapham common was ſix degrees below Zero, and in other places lower, a degree of cold hitherto unknown in this country, he loſt his recollection and ſenſes, and about half paſt three o'clock the ſame day this excellent man paid the great debt of Nature.—" Hic dolor noſter, noſtrum vulnus.

A report was circulated that a number of Iriſh men and women not pleaſed with the mode of diſtributing the proviſions and coals which were given away to the poor during the hard weather, not only joſtled him, but that many ſtruck him, which was the cauſe of his death. This report appeared in the Newſpapers, and was repeated in an elegy that was cried about the ſtreets. To the honor of the Pariſh, and to the credit of the poor, to whom he had ever been ſo attentive and good, no part of this is true. He never mentioned ſuch an incident, and did not make any complaints which could be referred to ſuch a cauſe. The number which were collected to receive theſe benefactions were ſo great, that thoſe on the outſide preſt very much to get forward; in conſequence of this, I believe he, being very ill at the time, was hurried and alarmed. This certainly might have encreaſed his complaints, but he was neither ill-treated nor abuſed.

In compliment to his virtues and great attention to the poor during ſo many years, the pariſh ordered St. Giles's Church to be hung with black for one month; and his funeral ſermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Buckner, the preſent worthy Rector, for whom Mr. Southgate had the moſt ſincere regard.

In ſtature Mr. Southgate was rather more than 5 feet 10 inches high, very upright, always luſty, and latterly corpulent; and although ever active in his mind, yet ſlow and inactive as to his body.

The leading traits of his character were mildneſs of diſpoſition and content. In ſituations of life where his income was not ſufficient to procure him any of the luxuries, and barely what other men would call the neceſſaries of life, he continued without murmuring. Under the oppreſſion of illneſs, and in the full vigour of health, in the days of poverty, and in the hours of affluence, the ſame ſerenity attended him: as he was never elated by proſperity, ſo he was never dejected by adverſity.

To ambition he was a ſtranger: few men had more knowledge or were leſs aſſuming. He had only taken his degree of A. B. and although often preſſed by his friends to go to Cambridge and take his degree of A. M. and per ſaltum D. D. "that cannot add," he would ſay, "to my enjoyments, I do not want honors:" and then would add with a ſmile, "be not deſirous of being called by men, Rabbi."

He was a great admirer of our Conſtitution and Government, of which he was able to form a good judgement by comparing comparing it with the other States of Europe, with which, by reading, he was well acquainted. He did not trouble himſelf much about the politicks of the day. He conſidered himſelf too far removed from the candle to ſee clearly, and conſequently had not ſufficient information to judge of preſent meaſures with preciſion; but to the King of Kings he conſtantly prayed with fervency that he would avert from this country thoſe dreadful calamities which raged among a neighbouring and diſtracted people; at the recapitulation of whoſe enormities, committed before the face of heaven and in defiance of every law, human and divine, he has often ſhuddered with horror and indignation.

In religion he was a moſt diligent and laborious Miniſter of the Goſpel, a firm believer, and a ſtrict obſerver of the doctrines he taught: yet he was very far from being a bigot. In converſation, objections being made to ſome parts of the 39 articles, and to parts of our Liturgy, he anſwered, "I myſelf believe all this, and if they were properly underſtood and allowances made for the ſtyle and mode of expreſſion uſed at the time theſe were drawn up, there would not be thoſe objections made to them that there are, yet as ſome of theſe are not abſolutely neceſſary to Salvation, and great objections have been, and are ſtill made, I ſhall not think it wrong to leave out ſuch parts whenever the Biſhops ſhall think it right to bring a Bill into Parliament for that purpoſe, but there is much to fear when the Laity begin to reform the Church." And he had often ſaid he had no objection to the repeal of the Teſt and Corporation Acts, as he feared they were frequently the cauſe of the Holy Sacrament being profaned, and did not perfectly anſwer the purpoſes intended, as they only kept out the beſt and moſt conſcientious diſſenters.

To alleviate the helpleſs and to comfort the afflicted were among the moſt ſhining qualities of his mind. For theſe he would ould have foregone every pleaſure, and would have ſpared neither trouble nor fortune. When he gave conſolation to the afflicted, bread to the hungry, or was the means of procuring health to the ſick, he afforded that ſublime ſatisfaction to his own mind, which neither the influx of riches, nor the addition of honours, could have given him; and though of late years, on account of his health, he had provided a perſon to do the evening duty and to bury, yet he never would give up viſiting the ſick poor. His kindneſs and charity were not unfrequently made the dupes of diſſimulation and iniquity,* but this did not in the leaſt impede his exertions in favour of the diſtreſſed, whom he attended with a zeal and anxiety which few equal, and none ſurpaſs.

With a great ſtock of knowledge, he was poſſeſſed of much anecdote, and an amiable diſpoſition; he was a ſincere friend, a pleaſing and inſtructive companion, and had the faculty of communicating information without appearing to teach. His memory was great, but not ſervile, for he treaſured up things rather than words. He was deep, but not ready, and his diffidence ever prevailed in the company of ſtrangers, where he was reſerved and ſilent.

He had very much at heart, that the poor ſhould be inſtructed in the religion they profeſſed; and this he thought could not be thoroughly accompliſhed, unleſs they had a tolerable knowledge of their mother tongue; in order to promote this, he was a conſtant ſubſcriber to the charity ſchool of his own pariſh; he was a warm promoter of a Sunday ſchool in London, and he ſupported one at his living in Nottinghamſhire. He went frequently to examine and inſtruct the children at the Philanthropic Society's houſe in St. George's Fields. He was a member of the Society for the Propogation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts, and of the Society for the ſupport of the Widows and Orphans of the Clergy within the Bills of Mortality and in the County of Middleſex.

* Many of theſe caſes I have known, but ſhall relate the following, which happened not long before his death. He was ſent for to pray by a poor man and his wife who were repreſented to be extremely ill. Having prayed by them, and adminiſtered the kind of admonition and conſolation ſuitable to their ſituation, he gave them half a crown, and ſaid he would ſend an apothecary to them. In about an hour and an half, when the apothecary whom he had ſent to theſe people on his account, got there, the man and the woman were both gone to the alehouſe to ſpend the money which he had given them.

He has kept a regular journal from January the 1ſt. 1757, to within a few days before his death. This journal is merely an account of the manner in which he ſpent his time, and ſeems to have been made both with a political and moral view. Firſt, that, if he ſhould be at any time called upon as a witneſs, he might be better able to ſpeak with preciſion; and ſecondly, that, by always recording the manner in which he ſpent his time, might be a check upon his own conduct.

Mr. Southgate never committed any of his writings to the preſs; but had he lived, the world would have received from his pen a work much wanted, and for which he was thoroughly qualified; viz. a new Hiſtory of the Saxons and Danes in this country, illuſtrating, and illuſtrated by, their Coins: for which purpoſe he had been reading both printed books and manuſcripts, and had been collecting the types and inſcriptions of all the known Coins of this ſort above ſix years: but here the world has to lament the goodneſs of his memory, to which he committed all that ſtore of knowledge which he poſſeſſed, and no man ever poſſeſſed ſo much learning in this part of hiſtory. Had he lived, he would have rectified many errors in, and added much information to, this part of our hiſtory: but nothing now remains, but the Inſcriptions of the Coins, and a very few Drawings.

Beſides

Beſides his knowledge of the Greek and Latin tongues, he was tolerably verſed in the French and German languages, and knew ſufficient of the Italian and Spaniſh to make out any of their Hiſtorians, or books of coins.

His knowledge of ancient and modern hiſtory was not equalled by many, and ſcarce any were ſo well acquainted with the hiſtory of the middle ages, or with the families of the ſmall Dukedoms and Principalities of Europe. As to his medallic knowledge very few were to be compared with him, and it was from this ſource that his hiſtorical knowledge was ſo conſiderable, and from his mode of collecting that it was ſo well retained. He was well acquainted both with the early and modern Engliſh Poets as well as the Proſe Writers, and was extremely well informed about the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of this country, the various religious diſputes, and the characters of the perſons who were principally concerned in them; and had rather more than a ſuperficial knowledge of Natural Hiſtory and the Linnæan Syſtem.

In regard to his Collections now offered to the Publick, it is ſufficient to ſay that his Books conſiſt of the beſt editions, are fine copies, are moſtly in excellent condition, and many in ſuperb bindings. His taſte and choice in buying theſe will be better ſeen by thoſe who examine the catalogue than I can expreſs it. I ſhall only obſerve, that, of favourite Authors, he endeavoured to procure every thing they publiſhed, in order to compleat their works; and for the purpoſe of knowing what ſuch authors have publiſhed this Catalogue will ever be a good book of reference.

His collection of Coins, independent of the Greek and Roman, which, though fine, are not numerous, principally conſiſts of the following—

Anglo-Saxon, English, and Anglo-Gallic Coins, many of which are unique, and ſuch a ſeries of the former, ſo nearly compleat and ſo wonderfully preſerved were never before brought to ſale.

ENGLISH TOWN PIECES and TRADESMENS TOKENS. His collection of this kind is ſuperior to any in the kingdom, and though at preſent no high value be ſet upon the latter by men of learning, there is no doubt, but a time will come, when theſe coins will be as much eſteemed in this country, as the Town-pieces of the Greeks—Indeed the uſe of the names of towns, on the Anglo-Saxon and early Engliſh coins, is even now univerſally acknowledged.

ENGLISH and FOREIGN MEDALS. Theſe are in the fineſt preſervation and among them ſome of the greateſt rarity.

PAPAL MEDALS. This ſeries is numerous and very fine.

DOLLARS, or the large Silver Coins of different parts of the world. This collection is very large and I believe matchleſs in point of preſervation: many are proofs, and Mr. Tho. Snelling refuſed for the coin of John Demetrius ten guineas, which was offered him by a foreigner who wiſhed to take it abroad. This kind of collection has not hitherto been much ſought after in this country, but on the continent it is prized beyond all other modern coins, and it was principally from this ſource Mr. Sutherland acquired and retained his knowledge of the hiſtory of Europe.

EARLY SMALL SILVER COINS of Europe. Theſe are fine and intereſting.

ASIATIC COINS, are beautiful and curious.

ARMENIAN COINS. Of theſe I believe there never was ſo large and fine a collection ever before offered to the public in any part of Europe.

It is to be lamented that for the conveniency of Sale the different ſeries of Coins have unavoidably been ſeparated, but care care has been taken to preſerve as much as poſſible the Chronological arrangements :

In regard to the FOSSILS and SHELLS, it is evident from the ſmallneſs of the number, and from the deficiency in many of the Genera, that he had not been long collecting. He never intended to have formed a numerous collection of theſe articles; but he wiſhed to have a few Specimens of each of the Genera, and theſe the moſt beautiful. This accounts for the collection being ſo very incomplete ; but yet the Connoiſſeur will find many Specimens, which, for beauty and rarity, are not to be equalled in the moſt extenſive Cabinets.
